STUDY PHARMACY IN THE UK

STUDYING PHARMACY IN THE UK

Studying pharmacy in the UK is a popular route for Canadian students as it leads to a qualification as a pharmacist. SI-UK has over 15 years of experience helping international students apply to pharmacy schools in the UK and is kept up to date on the latest updates, scholarships, and rankings. Canadian students are able to study pharmacy at a wide range of UK universities.

MASTER OF PHARMACY (MPHARM)

UK universities offer a 4-year undergraduate pharmacy program, termed an MPharm. This program is accredited by the General Pharmaceutical Council (GPhC). All provinces in Canada, except Quebec, require students educated outside of Canada to have their academic documents evaluated by The Pharmacy Examining Board of Canada (PEBC) Certificate of Qualification. An MPharm meets the PEBC requirements so students can follow the route to become registered with their provincial College of Pharmacists.

WHICH UK PHARMACY SCHOOL?

There are more than 30 universities in the UK that offer an accredited MPharm program. Here are just a few of our student's destinations.

TESTIMONIALS

"I would definitely recommend SI-UK to anyone exploring education at a UK university. Given that I started the application with no prior knowledge, SI-UK were very patient in explaining the steps, what to expect and how to prepare.

They were very approachable and helpful throughout the process. It would be an understatement to say they played a big role in making this possible."

Avilasha H, University of Bristol

"I would recommend SI-UK as they made the process of applying to study pharmacy in the UK very easy. They were able to answer all my questions, give me advice on my personal statement, and what to do after I was accepted and pre-departure assistance."
